CONDITIONS OF REPORTING :-

The Reported result are for the information of the referring Doctor Only. Few cases may show false negative results because of technical limitations and limitations of sensitivity and specificity of the kit used. Isolated tests never confirm the final diagnosis but help in arriving at a diagnosis in concordance with clinical examination and other related factors for tests performed on samples received from outside. It is presumed that the sample belongs to the patient concerned. The normal values and the technical notes given in the report are general comments about the test and do not pertain to a particular patient. If results do not co-relate with clinical findings, repeat should be done with a different method. Any printing error should be verified from the lab.
