Session 2023-24

Slow Learners

To support individuals with a slower learning pace, the department instituted Peer Mentoring Programs, where proficient students were encouraged to assist their peers in identifying and structuring areas of academic weakness, fostering improvement. This initiative not only facilitates the progress of fellow students but also serves as a comprehensive revision tool. Key areas of focus include academic aptitude, assistance with time management, the creation of effective mind maps to guide syllabus comprehension, cultivation of positive study habits and strategies, honing test-taking skills, and addressing procrastination tendencies. These sessions were conducted under the supervision of the faculty members with continuous monitoring of students' progress and performance.
